Objectives

It is increasingly recognised that a partnering approach towards project delivery among all project stakeholders will go a long way in driving project efficiency which would lead to time and cost saving while achieving high quality works. The HKSAR Government had pledged to use NEC3 as a form of collaborative contract in capital works whenever possible.

This seminar will continue CIC's effort in helping our industry stakeholders to appreciate the value of partnering / collaboration in construction projects and to familiarise with NEC3 and its adoption in the industry.

The CIC had published the "Reference Materials - Frequently Asked Questions on NEC3 Collaborative Contracts" and "Guidelines on Partnering" which can be downloaded from the CIC website.

Guidelines on Partnering

The Contracts (Rights of Third Parties) Ordinance Cap 623 is in effect since 1 January 2016. The Ordinance will apply to construction contracts entered into after the commencement date. Legal expert will provide an overview of the ordinance and how it would affect the operations in the construction industry.
